

About the Author

Paul Hainline writes using the Berean approach of “examining the Scriptures daily to see whether these things were so” (Acts 17:11), and letting Scripture interpret Scripture. He is the author of multiple books on Bible study, evangelism, and Christian living, and writes with his wife Pam on books for teenagers in the Your Name Means Everything series.

All of his books are available as free PDF and EPUB downloads at noblemind.study, alongside the Noble Mind Study Tool — a free, offline-capable Bible study application built around the same Berean methodology.

This book is short enough to read in a hospital room. It is meant to be.

Someone you love is dying. Or maybe that someone is you.

Through the Valley walks with two people at once — the one whose body is failing and the one who will be left behind. It does not separate them, because they are walking through the same valley.

In eight chapters anchored entirely in Scripture, this book examines what God actually says — not platitudes, not near-death stories, not clinical speculation. What does God say about His presence when He feels absent? What happens after death? And how do you grieve honestly while holding to a hope that Scripture calls certain?

The valley is real. The shadow is dark. But David did not say ‘if I walk into the valley.’ He said ‘even though I walk through.’ The valley has a through. And the Shepherd is already there.

*To everyone walking through this valley —
the one whose body is failing,
and the one sitting at the bedside.*

Scripture quotations from the New American Standard Bible® (NASB).

9798995428886

Through the Valley is written for the hardest season — when someone you love is facing the end, or when that someone is you.

Built on five principles — the Bible as sole authority, word-for-word accuracy, Scripture interprets Scripture, intellectual honesty, and a shared journey — each chapter walks with both the one who is departing and the one who remains.

This is not a book of platitudes. It acknowledges that the pain is real, the body decays, and the questions are often loud. It does not pretend the valley is not dark. It simply trusts that the Light is brighter.