

*“But now faith, hope, love,
abide these three;
but the greatest of these is love.”*

— 1 Corinthians 13:13

The world has heard this chapter a thousand times at weddings and read it carefully almost nowhere else.

Paul did not write 1 Corinthians 13 as wedding poetry. He wrote it to a fractured first-century church that had collected impressive spiritual gifts and lost the one thing that made the gifts mean anything. Fifteen attributes of love, addressed one chapter at a time, with the Greek named where it helps and the Corinthian failures named where they sharpen what we are now being asked to do.

Written for junior-high and high-school students. Useful for any believer who wants to walk out what this chapter actually demands.

The love described here is the eternal nature of God Himself, and you have been invited to learn what it looks like — and to begin practicing it now.

Scripture quotations from the New American Standard Bible® (NASB).

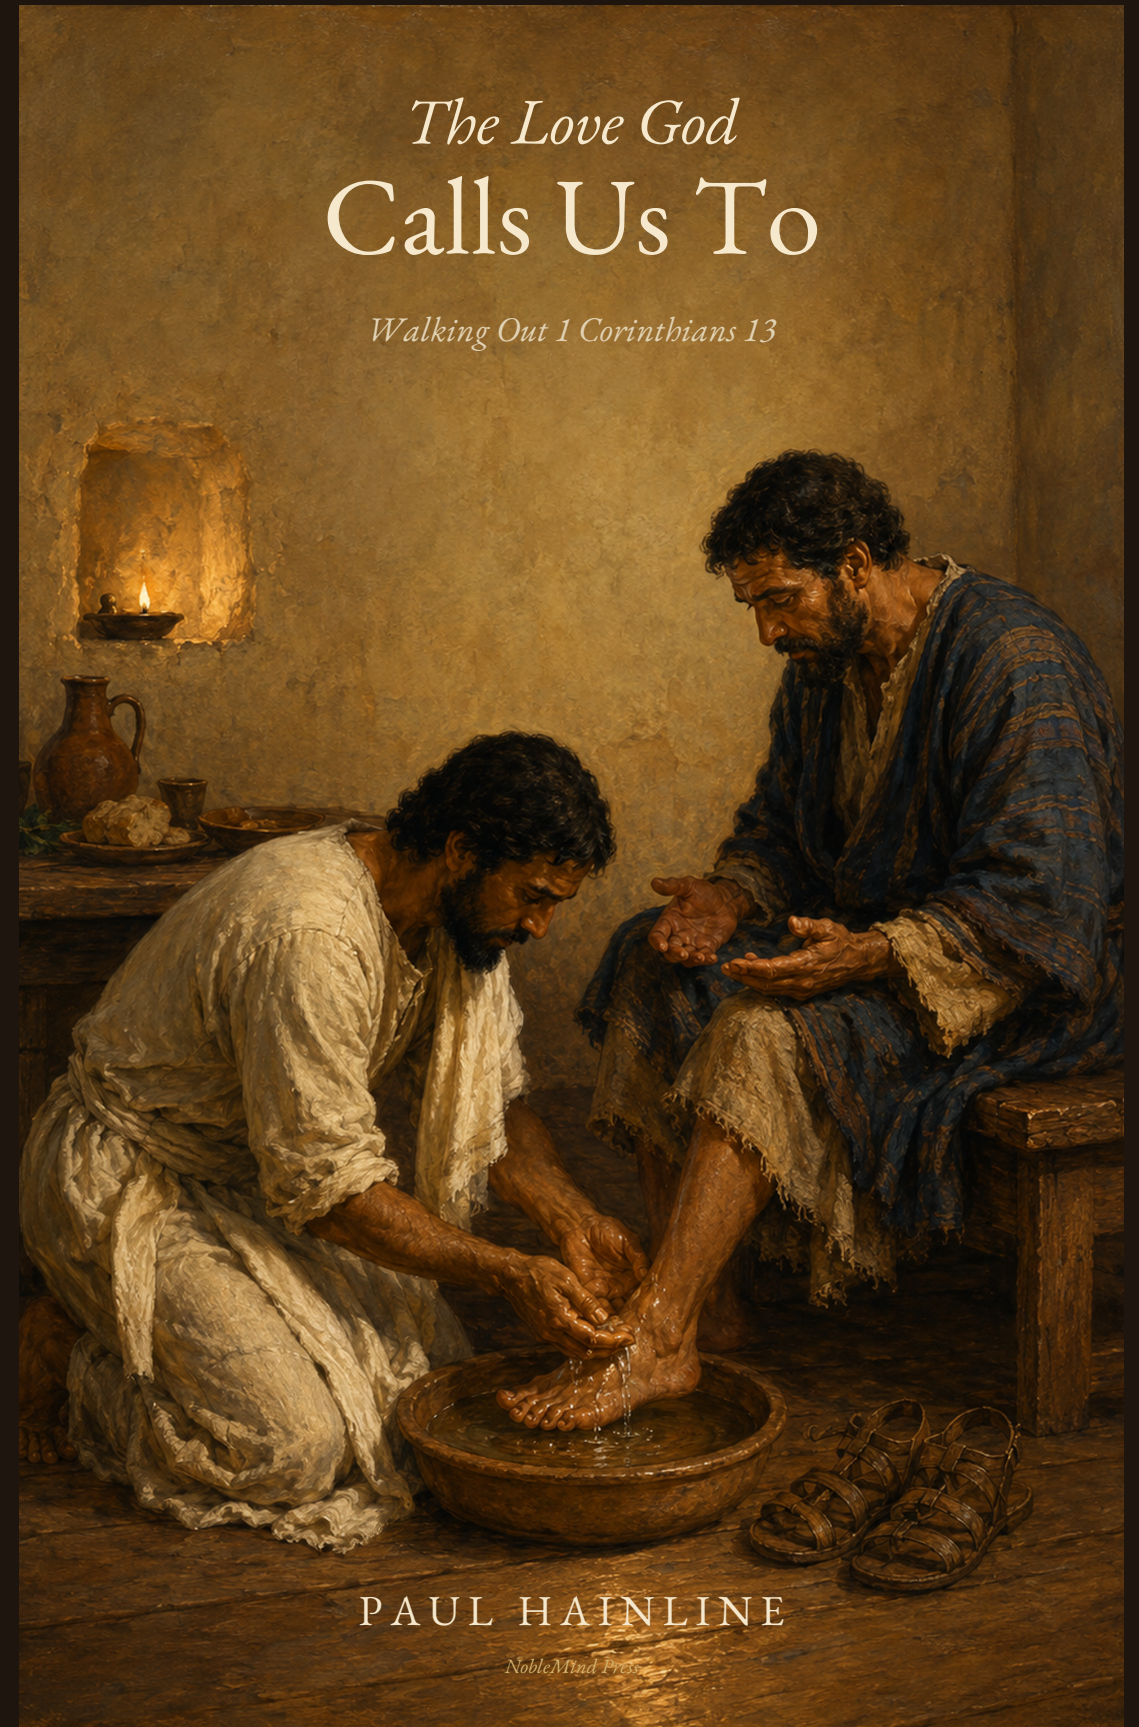

NobleMind Press

noblemind.study

The Love God Calls Us To
PAUL HAINLINE

The Love God Calls Us To

Walking Out 1 Corinthians 13

PAUL HAINLINE

NobleMind Press