RE: Formal Permission for "Change the Mind, Change the Man" and NobleMind.study

Dear Freddie,

I am writing to you because the book I have just finished, and the life I am living now, would not exist without the time you spent opening the Word with me.

The book is titled "Change the Mind, Change the Man," a phrase that has become the central pillar of my own my walk with Christ. Throughout the manuscript, I have leaned heavily on the principles you taught me—specifically your "NobleMind" method of searching the Scriptures daily and letting Scripture interpret Scripture and your insistence that we never reference the traditions of men, but only what the text actually says.

Why I am reaching out: I have included several of your specific teachings, phrases, and anecdotes because they illustrate the truth more clearly than any words I could come up with on my own. Specifically, I have included:

- Your observation that "all of the imprisoned are not in prison".
- The three-question method you used with Gus.
- Your unique exegetical structure for Philippians 4:8 as the "doxology" of Paul's letters.
- Your teaching on the difference between schēma (outward form) and morphē (inner nature) in Romans 12.

I have also built a Bible study application called NobleMind.study that uses these same principles to help others perform their own "audits" of the truth, although it is still a work in progress as I have time.

I have credited you by name throughout the book, as I want readers to know exactly where this wisdom came from. However, to ensure everything is handled with total integrity and to protect the future of this project, I would like your formal "blessing" and permission to use these oral teachings and phrases in the book and the app.

If you are willing to grant this permission, please sign the section below. It would mean the world to me to have your official approval as I move toward publication.

With much love and respect,

Paul Hainline

Grant of Permission

I, Freddie Anderson, hereby grant Paul Hainline non-exclusive permission to use and attribute my oral teachings, specific phrases, and anecdotes in his book Change the Mind, Change the Man (including future editions) and the NobleMind.study digital platform.

The Core Thesis

The central premise of this work is that the "problem" of addiction is not primarily a substance, but a gaze. Using the "NobleMind" approach—high-resolution Greek and Hebrew exegesis coupled with personal narrative—the book argues that while the world focuses on outward rearrangement (schēma), God requires a fundamental transformation of the mind (morphē).

The 10-Chapter Arc

Part I: The Anatomy of the Descent

- Chapter 1: The Phone Call – Defines the moment of isolation when a family's world splits into "before" and "after," grounded in the hope of Psalm 23.
- Chapter 2: The Progression – Uses the hunting and fishing metaphors of James 1 to show how temptation lures the mind from safety into a "baited hook".
- Chapter 3: Where Did We Go Wrong? – Addresses parental guilt via Ezekiel 18, establishing that while circumstances matter, every soul bears individual responsibility for its choices.

Part II: The Walls of the Mind

- Chapter 4: All of the Imprisoned Aren't in Prison – Explores the "invisible prisons" of shame and secrecy, highlighting the need for horizontal confession (James 5:16).

- Chapter 5: Love That Says No – Examines the "tough love" of 1 Corinthians 5 and Hebrews 12, distinguishing between enabling and the redemptive discipline of a father.

Part III: The NobleMind Method

- Chapter 6: Think – The heartbeat of the book. It unpacks the three facets of the mind: Nous (the faculty), Phroneō (the aim), and Logizomai (the deliberate audit of truth).
- Chapter 7: Coming to Himself – Analyzes the Prodigal Son's "turning," defining genuine repentance as metanoia (a mind-change) rather than mere metamelomai (regret).

Part IV: The Return and the Road

- Chapter 8: The Father Ran – Contrasts total forgiveness with the lasting "ever before me" consequences of sin, using David and the Prodigal's father as models.
- Chapter 9: The Long Road – Warns against the "swept but empty house" of Matthew 12, emphasizing the need for the Word to richly dwell (enoikeitō) within the mind.
- Chapter 10: The God Who Finds You – The final invitation. It defines the door into Christ through baptism (Romans 6, Galatians 3) and the necessity of remaining faithful until death.
